debunk

(verb) :

to expose the pretentions or falseness of, esp. by ridicule

(see bunkum)

bunkum

(noun) :

meaningless political claptrap, nonsense

(derivation- Buncombe County)

In 1820, US House Representative Felix Walker, of Buncombe County, North Carolina prattled on in a long-winded speech before the United States Congress supporting the State of Missouri's right to be a slave state. He assured his colleagues that his speech was for his constituency, that he was in fact " speaking to Buncombe". His fellow Congressmen then coined the phrase "speaking bunkum" when one of their fellow dingdongs yapped on and on about meaningless BS.
