Anne Manner-McLarty

As a business owner and resident of Asheville, I am quite excited to learn of the upcoming openings on the Public Art and Cultural Commission. Thank you for considering my application to this appointment. Service on this committee would provide an opportunity to bring the expertise I have gained through my professional career to bear for the benefit of my community. Furthermore, it would be a meaningful way to participate in the dynamic development of our city. I'm drawn to the challenge of stewarding a vision that is evolving with the growth in our community and responding to both tradition and change, visitors and residents.

I grew up thoroughly ensconced in the arts. My mother was a high school art teacher and drawing, painting, sculpting, theater, music and crafts of every sort were a constant in our home. This lead me to a fine arts degree in sculpture from the Rhode Island School of Design, then a specialty in environmental graphics, and eventually to a position of industry leadership in the niche within a niche that is donor recognition. In 2011, I founded Heurista, a consulting firm that specializes in donor relations, including all types of donor recognition displays. We routinely encourage our clients to think beyond the typical donor wall and to treat donor recognition as a key investment in creative placemaking.

We intentionally seek organizations willing to invest in public art and cultural expression as keys to successful community building. We've worked with organizations such as the Piedmont Park Alliance in Atlanta, the Conservancy of Southwest Florida, the University of Colorado Anschutz Medical Campus, the Children's Hospital at Erlanger in Chattanooga, Greenville Health System (now Prisma Health), Mission Health, and Clemson University – to name just a few – to celebrate and coordinate mission, vision, values and the accomplishments made possible through philanthropy. A hallmark of our work is a focus on documented guidelines, policies, and procedures that support the work and provide consistency over time. If selected, I'll gladly offer my skill and insight in preparing and maintaining tools like this to the PACC. You can learn more about the Heurista team, our clients and specific projects by visiting Heurista.com.

When our family moved to Asheville in 2005, I made three commitments to myself: to reshape my career, to have a strong network of friends, and to find opportunities for civic engagement. I feel I've been successful on all three fronts. From 2009-2012, I was actively involved in TEDxAsheville, an experience that was pivotal in helping me understand the nuances of diversity in Asheville, the importance of engaging multiple perspectives, and the joy in providing a platform for the community to highlight its unique character. I would love nothing more than to serve on the PACC as another way of participating in the life of our community. I look forward to your thoughts regarding my application and welcome any opportunity to share more about my work, interests, and experience.

With warm regards,
Anne

Heurista, Co. President and Lead Donor Relations Strategist
September 2011 to present

Heurista is the name I created to illustrate my approach to problem solving and the cooperative, creative process that I bring to projects. My leadership rests on the variety of work we have done and the clients I have been fortunate to meet over the years. We help our clients improve their donor relations strategies through well-documented plans based on tactics proven in the field. Typically, Heurista is engaged when clients are in the planning stages of a fundraising campaign, undergoing significant growth or change or celebrating a milestone, such as an anniversary or other major public project.

1. Create a consulting firm in a developing market by responding to emerging trends in the nonprofit arena, especially the need to provide consistency and efficiency in the face of ever larger capital campaigns
2. Research, draft, review and approval negotiation and implementation of donor relations, stewardship and recognition policy and procedures
3. Program planning including: donor relations, stewardship and donor recognition audits, naming opportunity planning, strategic recognition planning addressing centralized recognition practices as well as facility-based and non-facility based naming opportunities (endowments, scholarships, programs and faculty positions)
4. Design and implementation of individualized stewardship plans, especially for top-tier or multi-faceted donor relationships
5. Project management including: content development and cross-medium application, advocacy and internal/external resource coordination, design, budget-setting, vendor selection and supervision, and implementation
6. Long standing client relationships include: Greenville Hospital System, University of South Carolina, Mission Hospitals, Conservancy of Southwest Florida

Journal of Donor Relations & Stewardship, Managing Editor
2015 to present

Published in partnership with Executive Editor Julia Emlen, The Journal is a serial publication specific to issues of donor relations and stewardship. It is a professional forum for advancing the principles upon which the field of practice is based. The Journal explores the role of donor relations and stewardship within the larger perspective of nonprofit operations. The target audience is stewardship and donor relations practitioners, managers and executives in the nonprofit sector and students and instructors in programs of nonprofit management. The content is set apart from other offerings now available to the field in that it is focused on theory over day-to-day practice and encourages self-reflection and professional debate.

Association of Donor Relations Professionals, Board of Directors

ADRP is the authoritative international organization for the donor relations and stewardship profession. Collaboratively, members advance the practice of donor relations and stewardship through educational, professional development and networking opportunities. A member since 2005, I am a frequent presenter at conferences and via the webinar series. I have served on the Board of Directors, the Finance Committee and as co-chair of the Education Task Force.

- Participate in crucial strategic planning as the organization moves from an all volunteer model to the use of a hired management team; redefine the role of directors, committees and key volunteer roles
- Establish long-range, sustainable goals and processes to improve the quality of educational and information-based assets
- Assist in the transition to more sophisticated budget-setting and financial reporting models that respond effectively to the growing needs of the organization as it tops the 1,000 member mark and begins holding more frequent regional events

Robin E. Williams Incorporated, President and Senior Donor Recognition Consultant
2002 – 2011

Robin E. Williams Incorporated is known for the "think before you thank" philosophy for donor recognition and focuses on recognition policy, procedures and consistent communication throughout various venues and media. While with this firm, I provided focused and original insight into the current theories of experiential and interactive marketing techniques as they apply to donor recognition in all nonprofit arenas. I was instrumental in developing the Best Practices for Donor Recognition and the proprietary formats used for negotiating and documenting donor recognition policy, procedures and design standards – strategic tools that had not previously been introduced in the nonprofit arena.

- Primary responsibility for sales and marketing including leadership in client/prospect research, market presence, brand definition and application, and routine writing and speaking engagements
- Standard-driven design of donor recognition programs and other community-focused exhibits

Motherlode Creative Resource, Inc.
1993-2004

Motherlode was a full-services graphic design and print production resource for small business marketing that sometimes took on special projects–like event planning and donor recognition projects. Robin E. Williams Incorporated was a regular client. Working with Robin, I designed electronic donor recognition content as early as 1995. During this time period we also developed best practice for incorporating large format print and focused storytelling for donor recognition purposes.

To this position I will bring analytical thinking, the ability to problem solve and strong communication skills. I think lots of listening in this position is key, as it is the cornerstone to be able to consider all parties involved and their individual interests/stories. I am a creator, a yogi, a social justice advocate and a lover of the human experience. We must have different perspectives on all of the commissions. It's not just about diversity in age, race and gender. It's also about different ways of thinking, different approaches to problem solving and different lived experiences. I am a NY native who has also lived in Los Angeles and Connecticut. All of those areas are outside of the South and therefore, by default I will add something to the mix. I am also a yoga instructor and have studied the healing arts since 1989.

My education is derived from having rich lived experiences in the aforementioned locations, working in industries varying from health, fitness,wellness, small businesses, alternative healing centers, customer service, high end restaurants, yoga studios and have worked as a volunteer for a wide range of organizations. Additionally, I completed 3 years of college at a 3 year State university in NY. I am also a trained massage therapist in California. Our performances are always followed by talk backs to further help students to process and understand the subject matters of our shows. Here is paragraph from my bio: Recognizing that we have all been indoctrinated in the same oppressive culture, Daniele actively attends to healing her own internalized experiences, always orienting towards coming into deeper and deeper authentic connection with Self. Further, she fiercely believes in modeling the skills she partners with others to cultivate. You can expect that Daniele's work is equally focused on unraveling and dismantling that which no longer serves, while creating expanded spaces for a healing, love-centered, culture to arise. Hello Board,
While I do not have a stellar resume to provide ... my background is a BSN, working for Hewlett-Packard in a Environmental Health and Safety management position, I have always supported the arts
My sister was a photographer and artist and I served as her agent when she decided to sell her work volunteered at community art centers and private galleries in Georgia for several years.

I would very much like to assist our community in these endeavors with energy and enthusiasm!

So now you know my story..

Best regard,
Chrissy O'Donnell

I am a lifelong lover of art and a collector of local artists' works, wherever I have lived. Indeed, I often joke that I am the only friend I have who is not an artist.

I care deeply and strongly about the City, and I care about the image we present to our residents first. Public art has the power to inspire young people who are given the opportunities to see it regularly in their city, in their own neighborhoods, on and inside public buildings.

Adults often proclaim on social media how they continue to see with new eyes the art we show them here.

I support the continued work of brilliant artists such as Ian Wilkinson, whose murals give us smiles, hope and courage.

I support our Museum and its effort to bring us closer to art; the sculpture newly-installed out front is a reminder to us that Asheville has always been a cultural and artistic mecca. I want that to continue.

Sarah Terwilliger
Deputy City Clerk
City of Asheville
70 Court Plaza
Asheville, NC 28801

Dear Sarah Terwilliger:

I am writing to be considered for a committee member of the Public Art and Cultural Commission for the City of Asheville. Over the past ten years, my career focus has been to develop expertise in services to vulnerable communities, notably by providing food that is nutritious, accessible, and affordable. Engaging so thoroughly with the community has informed a firm commitment and understanding of local cultural and promotion.

Since 2010, I have been involved in community organizing, program management, and regulation of programming for vulnerable groups. Over that time, I developed skills in group leadership, client service, and financial management. My career progression has afforded me opportunities to contribute to strategic planning beyond just my work unit, to include issue that span across the organization and local community. Through that collaboration, I identified and sought out solutions to better serve stakeholders: clients, volunteers, partners, employees, and funders. Further, I have been responsible for soliciting and reporting on government revenue to ensure needed resources are appropriately provided and utilized.

The Public Art and Cultural Commission excites me because it complements my personal and professional interests and experiences. I am avid appreciator and promoter of the arts and local culture. I have always had a firm belief that in order to form a productive civic community that it has to be grounded and promotive of the local cultural. In Asheville, it is the bastion of the sense of community, place, and economy. As a child, I regularly visited Asheville. My aunt and grandparents lived here and I would travel from Oak Ridge, TN. I was fascinated with a place that was so grounded in an identify connected to the arts and crafts. As an adult, I am impressed by these decisions and actions that have maintained this sense of identity. I have traveled the world, and the United States, and few places have the sense of identity that Asheville, North Carolina has. I want to be involved with this commission because it contributes to an identify and the economy that makes this city thrive.

To complement my practical experience, I recently earned a Master of Public Administration, which provides new breadth to my work experience. I believe that my background, skillset, and disposition will prove an asset to the Public Art and Cultural Commission. I hope to continue this conversation in the future.

Sincerely,

Michael G. Waddle
